Task 1.2 Ten top tourist attractions in Paris

This task will give you lots of dictionary practice as well as introducing you to ten tourist attractions that most people want to see while they are in Paris. Many of the Chinese names of these attractions are transliterations, in other words, the name is ‘sounded out’ using Chinese characters. Others are translations of the actual name of the place.

Using the internet and a dictionary, complete the table below with the name of the attraction and the correct pinyin and tones for Chinese characters. In the final column, put a tick if you think part of the name has been ‘transliterated’

中文		pinyin		English	transliteration?
埃菲尔铁塔
卢浮宫
蒙娜丽莎
圣母院
凯旋门
圣心圣殿
凡尔赛宫
塞纳河
香榭丽舍大街
迪士尼乐园 度假区

Task 1.2 Chinese Tourists' Top Five – practising percentages

The 'infographic' below comes from an official Visit Paris website. It shows which sites were the most popular with Chinese tourists in 2019 according to the percentage of Chinese visitors to Paris who visited them.

Do you remember how to do percentages in Chinese?

It's really easy:

百分之 + the percentage number

so, 70% is 百分之七十

Fill in the table below with the percentages written in Chinese characters. One has been done for you. NB – they are not in the same order as in the picture!

名胜古迹	%
圣母院
聖心聖殿
埃菲尔铁塔	百分之八十
凯旋门
卢浮宫

Task 2: Giving directions

You may or may not have ever visited Paris but with the help of Google maps you can practise giving directions in Chinese. Choose three journeys between any of the five tourist destinations in Task 1.2. Enter the journey into Google maps or a similar app, find the route by either public transport or on foot and describe it in Chinese with the approximate journey time. (You can use the English or French for the names of streets, bus stops etc)

Here's an example:

Journey: Arc de Triomphe to the Eiffel Tower by bus.

Directions: 走路两分钟到 Charles de Gaulle 车站，上 30 路汽车，坐到 Tour Eiffel 车站，下车以后走路一分钟就到了。大约十五分钟的路程

Here's how Google Maps gives the information for you to base your directions on.

Some key terms

路 lù 'route' eg: 七路公共汽车 'No. 7 bus'

路程 lù chéng 'journey'

大约 dà yuē 'approximately, about'

大约 X 分钟的路程 'a journey of about X minutes'

Task 3: Packing Instant Noodles!

France may be famous for its cuisine, but many Chinese tourists like to pack some instant noodles in case they miss familiar food. In this article from The Chairman's Bao you'll find out how some Chinese tourists make sure they've included some packs of instant noodles in their suitcases. Click on the link below and take the following steps to ensure that you get the most out of this important learning resource.

Tick each step as you complete it on the table on the next page. Remember, repetition, repetition, repetition is a key trick for successful language learners. You'll listen to the short audio five times (don't worry it's only one minute forty-seven seconds long!) but don't skimp on it!

Task 4: Tips on Travel from a Chinese Vlogger

Task 4.1

Lots of Chinese visitors or students in Paris like to post useful tips on social media about travelling around the city. Watch this five-minute YouTube video in which a young Chinese student describes how to use the Metro. Don't worry if you don't catch much of what she says, just listen out for the words you recognize:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1d35HFCgVMY>

Now watch it one more time and clap your hands every time you hear her say

买票 mǎi piào (buy tickets)

Task 4.2 Listening more closely

Watch it a third time (don't forget -- listening and re-listening is a brilliant way of increasing your skills in a foreign language). In the scroll below jot down in pinyin any words you recognize and answer the three questions in English:

1. How many tickets does she buy and does she opt for a receipt?

2. What is it about the train doors that she thinks would surprise Chinese visitors?

---

3. What English phrase does she sign off with?

Task 4.3 Now it's your turn!

Here's a fun challenge.....think of some part of everyday life near you, maybe catching a local bus or train , visiting a local tourist attraction or something as simple as going to a supermarket. Write or film a short explanation in Chinese to show a Chinese speaker how to go about buying a ticket or using the automatic checkout. If you prefer not to film it, you could create a step-by-step cartoon. Here's some key phrases from the Paris Vlog that you may like to use:

先。。。然后 xiān.....rán hòu     first.....then....

这个就是。。。 zhè ge jiù shì...     so this is the....

看一下。。。 kàn yī xià..... take a look at....

大家一定要注意。。。 dà jiā yī ding yào zhù yì... you should all take note that....

上面写着。。。 shàng mian xiě zhe     written above is....

怎么用机器买 X zěnme yòng jī qì mǎi X     how to use the machine to buy X

Task 5: Three famous Chinese residents of Paris

Many students from China go to Paris to study. In this task you'll find out about three famous Chinese people who spent time in Paris as students. Two were politicians who were key figures in twentieth century Chinese history, the other was an artist who made Paris her home and is buried in the famous Montparnasse cemetery.

Task 5.1

Do some research about these three people and fill in the table below:

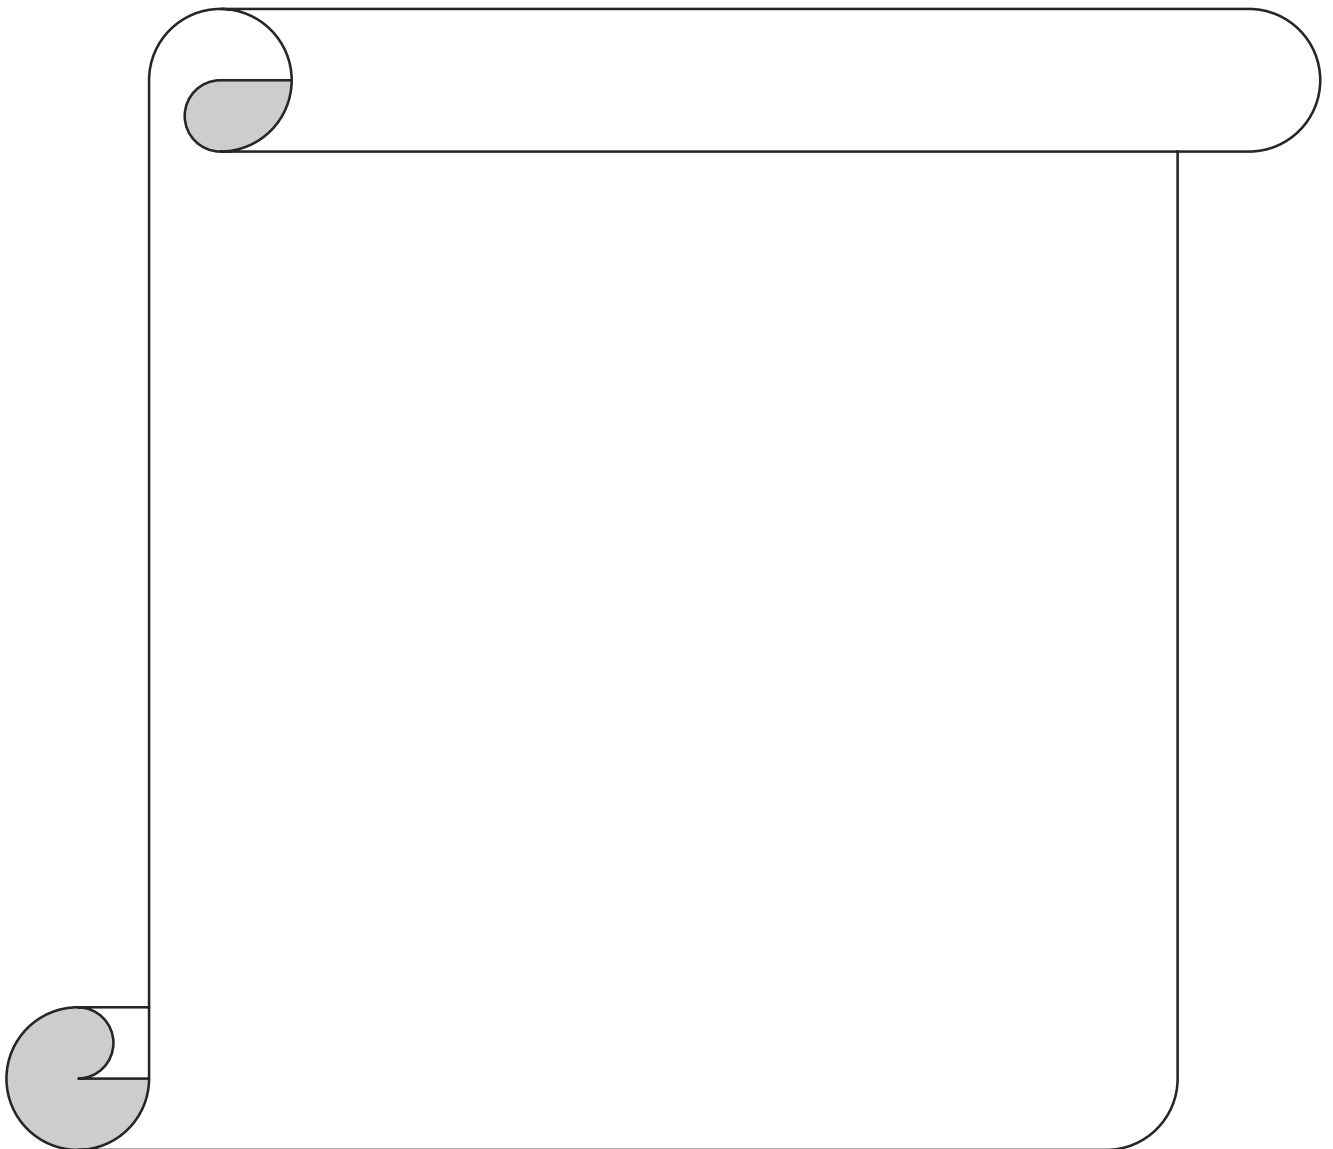

Name	Deng Xiaoping	Zhou Enlai	Pan Yuliang
Chinese characters for their name
Date of birth (written in Chinese)
Date of death (written in Chinese)
The years they lived in Paris

Task 5.2

Now answer the following questions in the scroll below:

1. Zhou Enlai was premier of China from 1949 until 1976, who was the leader of China during that time?
2. What was the name of Zhou Enlai's wife and what political office did she hold in the 1980s?

5. Deng famously said "It doesn't matter whether a cat is black or white, if it catches mice it is a good cat". Find out the Chinese for this statement and write it in characters. What did he mean by it?
6. In 1984, Deng met with a British prime minister to negotiate the handover of Hong Kong to China from British rule. Who was that prime minister?
7. What style of painting did Pan Yuliang do and why did some people in China criticize her for it?
8. Look in Google images for paintings by Pan Yuliang, choose one that you like, write down its name and write three sentences in English about why you like it.

Click on the link below and take the following steps to ensure that you get the most out of this important learning resource.

Tick each step as you complete it on the table below. Remember, repetition, repetition is a key trick for successful language learners. You'll listen to the short audio five times (don't worry it's only one minute and seventeen seconds long!) but don't skimp on it!

Task 7: A Pretend Paris!

The reputation of Paris as a beautiful city is so great in Asia that the Japanese have even coined a phrase 'Paris Syndrome'. This is the psychological disappointment that some people experience when they eventually visit Paris and find that it's not the fairy tale place they expected but a bustling modern city with traffic jams and crowded metros.

Task 7.1

Maybe the best way to avoid Paris Syndrome is to visit a reconstruction!...Tiān dū chéng 天都城 in Hangzhou is a residential area built to resemble Paris. Take a look at the photos below. Write the character 假 (jiǎ 'false') under the pictures you think are from 天都城 and or 真 (zhēn 'true') under the pictures you think are really Paris.

Task 7.2

Now watch this two-minute video on YouTube about Tian du cheng. Don't worry that the announcer is talking very fast. After you've watched it once, watch it again and listen out for any words or phrases you recognize. Jot these down in pinyin in the scroll below:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=TpGUEL6S17Y>

Now watch this short clip of a French photographer visiting Tian du cheng and comparing it with his home town of Paris (he's talking in English). Look out for the other 'false' European cities he mentions have been built in China.

登机口                  计划                  航班号                  目的地

Task 8.3 Flight times

Research how long the approximate flying time (to the nearest hour) is between Paris and the cities listed on the departure board and write it in Chinese in the table below. Don't forget to add 左右 'approximately' after the number of hours. One has been done for you:
